

THE SOFTWARE DEVELOPMENT PROCESS

OVERVIEW

The software development process is what software developers have to know when developing a software system

But it is also something that software project managers have to know to have software projects under control

If you launch a software business this is the process you need to get familiar with in order to manage your suppliers, your customers, third parties and have elements to understand your business and its performances

It is not only related to develop a software product but also to specify it, verify and validate it and set it available for use and maintain it
